A Day in the Life of an IT Student

I arrived at school in the morning but our instructors did not meet us. My cousin picked me up and we decided to travel to Baguio since my class for tomorrow is just online.

- Composition Rule of Thirds. The tall tower and the main construction fence follow the lines of the grid making the photo balanced.

We arrived at Mirador Heritage and Eco-Spirituality Park later that afternoon. The view from the viewpoint with my cousins and aunt was amazing.

- Composition Framing. The white circular chairs form a natural frame around my relatives to make them the clear main subject.

We visited a few more places before heading home at night while the city lights were shining on the hill.

- Composition Leading Lines. The lines from the bottom of the photo lead your eyes up toward the hill filled with twinkling lights.

Narrative Statement

My goal for these photos was to document my unexpected journey from school to the mountains of Baguio all in one day. The story starts at my school on Wednesday morning when my cousin picked me up because our instructors were not around. Since the next day is an online class we decided to take a quick trip to Baguio. While we were there we visited Mirador Heritage and Eco-Spirituality Park which had a beautiful viewpoint. I decided to take pictures with my cousins and my aunt to capture our time together. We explored a few more spots before returning home that night. This trip taught me that I should take a lot of photos to keep memories because places and moments can change quickly.
